

Recently, our church hosted Jason and the band, "To The Sky". The band led worship and Jason gave the message. I have had a lot of experience with many Christian bands throughout my ministry career, and I must say that I was very pleased with "To The Sky". They truly led us in worship. By that I mean that at no time did it seem like we had a band in who was performing for us, but a band that led us in worship. They followed the Holy Spirit and led us in giving God glory and praise. Jason's message was scripturally based and personally challenging.

Both Jason and the band connected with our church and blessed all in attendance. They took time to talk with everyone and even play with the kids. It wasn't about how good they were (and they certainly didn't disappoint in that arena), but how they pointed to God in all that they said and did.

They all came back that evening for a concert. Again, the worship set was amazing and it was truly God-centric. The band has a passion for worshipping God and is more than capable in leading a passion-filled worship experience. Jason's evening message was excellent! Again, he was challenging and engaging.

The band stayed over and went to our men's fellowship meeting the next day and they were a welcomed addition to our group.

Over the week that followed I received so many messages and calls from people in our church and all of them said similar things, they were so blessed by the band and enjoyed the passion that they felt in worship. They also said that they were blessed and challenged by Jason's message.

I highly recommend Worldview Warriors. If you have the opportunity this ministry lead worship in your church and take a break from delivering sermons and let them challenge your flock, please do it!
